

Living our Purpose and Values

PwC's Code of Conduct

July 2018

Table of contents

i/ii/iii

Message from Andreas Staubli and Gema Olivar Pascual
Message from our Global Chairman
Message from our Global Chief Ethics & Compliance Officer

1

Living our Purpose and values

2

The Code in context

3

Speak up

4

Build trust in how we do business

8

Build trust with each other

12

Build trust in our communities

16

Build trust in how we use information

20

RADAR: A framework for deciding the right thing to do

23

Escalation procedure

24

We listen and take action
The Code of Conduct, and the PwC network of firms

25

Index

26

Contact information

Andreas Staubli
CEO PwC Switzerland

Gema Olivar Pascual
General Counsel PwC Switzerland

Dear Colleagues:

We conduct our business within the framework of the applicable professional standards, laws and regulations, together with PwC policies and standards. These are comprehensive and illustrating rules – yet they do not cover all after-effects of our behaviour.

In order to close the gap, we have given ourselves a Code of Conduct, which is a guardrail aiming to ensure that our behaviour contributes to creating a welcoming working atmosphere.

The Code is based on the PwC Purpose and our Global Values – act with integrity, make a difference, care, work together and reimagine the possible. The Code helps us to behave in accordance with our Purpose and our Values, but it is not a substitute for our responsibility and accountability to exercise good judgment and obtain guidance on proper business conduct.

The Code contains a RADAR – a helpful framework for deciding the right thing to do. If despite observing the RADAR you are ever unsure whether you are taking the right decision or if it happens to you that something just does not feel right, do speak up! Speaking up shows that we care about each other and our business.

You have different ways to express your concerns and speak up. You can raise a complaint or express a suspicion by reaching out to one of the contact points that you will find in the Escalation Procedure section at the end of the Code of Conduct. If you identify any serious misconduct, we expect you to address your concerns to the appropriate level.

We all have an obligation to comply with the letter and spirit of the Code and to help others do the same.

Kind regards,

Andreas and Gema

Bob Moritz
Chairman, PricewaterhouseCoopers
International Limited

PwC Purpose:

To build trust in society and solve important problems

Message from our Global Chairman

Dear Colleagues:

PwC is recognised as a global leader in professional services, working with many of the world's most well-known organisations in countries around the world. As the opportunities and challenges we all see get bigger and more complex, we continue to adapt. But as we evolve as a business, what must drive everything we do is our collective and individual commitment to the PwC Purpose and our values—the foundations of our network.

With over 200,000 of us working across more than 150 countries, we each have a role to play in making a real difference for our clients, the capital markets, our teams, our communities, and our broader stakeholders. We have a responsibility to understand why we do the things we do through our Purpose, what we focus on through our strategy, and how we work together through our values, behaviours, and conduct.

Purpose defines who a business is and why it exists, acting as a vital guidepost and benchmark to every decision. While a business' purpose may remain consistent, a growing challenge is that the expectations society places on all of us continue to change... and changing fast thanks to the big trends we all see and experience like demographic shifts, technological advances, flow of information instantaneously and many others. From environmental footprints to social impacts to investor demands and everything in between, businesses are expected to exhibit responsive and responsible behaviour in more areas and be accountable to an ever wider array of stakeholders.

The trust that our clients, communities and our people place in PwC, and our high standards of ethical behaviour, are fundamental to everything we do. As we go about our work it's important we have a frame of reference for the decisions we make every day. Our Code of Conduct (Code) can guide us, no matter where we are or what we do. It's how we do business.

The Code reinforces the importance of conducting business within the framework of professional standards, laws, and regulations, together with our own policies, values, and standards, even as we work across borders. It outlines the values and behaviours that define how we do business. It holds us accountable to be open-minded and responsive and to give our best.

What we achieve as PwC is entirely dependent on how we all individually put our Purpose and our values at the centre of everything we do—every day, in every action. So let's work together to build trust and solve important problems. Let's encourage collaboration, cultivate curiosity and innovation, act with integrity and foster a sense of care, always.

Laurie Endsley
*Chief Ethics & Compliance Officer,
PricewaterhouseCoopers International Limited*

Message from the Global Chief Ethics & Compliance Officer

Dear PwC teams:

The Code of Conduct is based on the PwC Purpose and a core set of shared values, and sets out a common framework around how we are expected to behave and to do the right thing. Knowing, understanding, and living the Code, is a fundamental part of who we are as PwC professionals, and what we stand for. Whether we are working with PwC people or others, we depend on each other to be mindful of our ethical responsibilities.

Our Code of Conduct reflects the significant changes in our world, the very nature of our work and how we do business today, as well as our need as trusted professionals to understand how to continue to behave ethically in the face of all of these changes. The Code is one of many tools we have as professionals to help guide our behaviour, and is intended to be a framework, not a rulebook. It cannot, and does not, cover every situation you might encounter but rather seeks to embed our values into our day to day behaviours and ethical decision making.

We are all an important part of this effort. Each of us has a part to play in living and upholding the behaviours outlined in this Code. But, we do not go it alone. We are all in this together. We support each other. We rely on each other to understand and adhere to all of these professional behaviours and standards, and apply them consistently. We collaborate on every level, and we help each other build skills in doing the right thing.

If we come across a situation that is inconsistent with our Code, we speak up. We value the courage it takes to raise concerns. Remember, investigations into allegations of misconduct are handled discretely and with sensitivity and we do not tolerate retaliation. When in doubt or facing a dilemma, we ask for help. There are local and network resources available to help us.

I look forward to working with all of you to maintain and foster PwC's robust ethical culture.

Thank you.

Living our Purpose and values

The PwC culture thrives supported by a framework of internal and external expectations and requirements. These help guide our behaviours and build trust:

- in how we do business
- with each other
- in our communities
- in how we use information

When working with our clients and our colleagues to build trust in society and solve important problems, we...

Act with integrity

- Speak up for what is right, especially when it feels difficult
- Expect and deliver the highest quality outcomes
- Make decisions and act as if our personal reputations were at stake

Make a difference

- Stay informed and ask questions about the future of the world we live in
- Create impact with our colleagues, our clients and society through our actions
- Respond with agility to the ever changing environment in which we operate

Care

- Make the effort to understand every individual and what matters to them
- Recognise the value that each person contributes
- Support others to grow and work in the way that brings out their best

Work together

- Collaborate and share relationships, ideas and knowledge beyond boundaries
- Seek and integrate a diverse range of perspectives, people and ideas
- Give and ask for feedback to improve ourselves and others

Reimagine the possible

- Dare to challenge the status quo and try new things
- Innovate, test and learn from failure
- Have an open mind to the possibilities in every idea

The Code in context

Our Purpose and values are the foundation of our success. We exist to build trust and solve important problems, and our values help us deliver on that Purpose.

This Code underpins our ability to behave in a manner consistent with our values.

Our Code is not meant to provide specific guidance on every situation where we might need to answer the question, “What is the right thing to do?” Instead, it is principle-based guidance that helps us think about difficult questions, promotes consultation, and encourages us to speak up if we have concerns. On page 20 of this Code, you will find details on RADAR (Recognise, Assess, Decide, Agree, Report), which is our framework for helping us decide the right thing to do.

This Code describes a common set of expectations for our conduct, a key element of which is that we abide by applicable laws and regulations. To the extent any local law or regulation is more restrictive than this Code, local law or regulation governs. Network and local policies and supplemental guidance complement the principles embodied in this Code and the PwC Network Risk Management Policies.

This Code applies to all of us. When we say “we” “our” or “us” we are referring to all of us at PwC, individual partners/principals and staff, as well as the individual firms that together form the PwC network.

Speak up

Speaking up is crucial to our culture and our long term results—it is a living example of our values. Speaking up when something doesn't seem right demonstrates our integrity and that we have the courage to do the right thing. Speaking up helps to prevent mistakes and misconduct and foster innovation. Speaking up shows that we care about each other and our business. And speaking up to get things right or keep them on track helps us live up to our commitment to deliver high quality outcomes.

Something doesn't seem right? Facing a dilemma? Have a question that leads to more difficult questions? Need advice?

Consult. Pick up the phone. Send an email. Set up a meeting. Speak up.

Each of us, no matter what our level or role, is empowered to speak up when dealing with behaviour or facing a situation that doesn't seem right. Each of us has a responsibility to report and express our concerns, and to do so fairly, honestly, and professionally.

Do not ignore it. Do not stay silent.

Collaboration means we consult with our colleagues in matters large and small, and we know that our concerns are heard and addressed in an open and professional manner, including that an investigation will take place when warranted. We consult with our supervisors, coaches, partners/principals, ethics teams, Risk and Quality teams, Office of the General Counsel, Human Capital representatives, or others at PwC, particularly those in reporting lines. These people are responsible for addressing or escalating as necessary the issues brought to their attention. We raise issues using formal and informal methods as appropriate: in person, over the phone, and/or electronically.

We protect against retaliation. In being true to the values of integrity and care—if you report a concern, it will be handled with appropriate confidentiality and discussed with others only as needed or advisable under the circumstances. Exercising professional scepticism, applying common sense, and knowing and applying the Code as well as the local supplementary guidance, will help each of us know when to speak up through whichever channel we are most comfortable.

As well as the resources listed here, each firm in the PwC network provides a mechanism to report issues. There is also a confidential global Contact Us email option on pwc.com/codeofconduct.

Speak up. It's the right thing to do. These are the moments that matter.

PwC is committed to protecting our people against retaliation. Retaliation is serious misconduct that will not be tolerated, and any PwC professional (including partners/principals or staff) who takes retaliatory action will be held accountable.

Q. What is retaliation?

A. Retaliation can be any form of reprisal, direct or subtle, for reporting in good faith actual or suspected issues.

We consult with our:

- Supervisors
- Coaches
- Partners/Principals
- Ethics teams
- Risk and Quality teams
- Office of the General Counsel
- Human Capital representatives
- Others at PwC

Build trust in how we do business

Whatever our professional background is, we behave with integrity and adhere to, and are guided by, the applicable professional standards (e.g., such as those established by the International Ethics Standards Board for Accountants (IESBA)).

The quality and impact of our work is critical to who we are as PwC professionals, and as a network of firms. Our sustained performance is part of how we create and build trust with our clients, in each other, and in our communities.

We serve only clients that we're competent to serve, who value our service, and who meet appropriate standards of legitimacy and integrity. We provide only services we are professionally capable of delivering. We collaborate to bring the necessary skills and innovation to our work. We deliver on our commitments.

Our reputation is defined by trust, integrity, and achieving high quality sustainable value. Our continued success means upholding professional standards, adhering to applicable laws and regulations, and fulfilling ethical obligations while delivering high quality, innovative work.

Our business judgment is free from bias, conflicts of interest or undue influence of others. We follow processes and procedures to identify and address any actual or potential conflicts of interests.

We recognise that independence, including the appearance of independence, is at the heart of objectivity. We proactively avoid and address circumstances that create, or might be seen to create, threats to our independence of assurance clients.

We are willing to walk away from engagements and clients if our independence, integrity, objectivity, or professionalism could be called into question if we continued.

*Mary Waldron
Global Chief Risk Officer*

What if?

I'm new to PwC. I know we have independence requirements, which I understand. But can you just remind me how I can check if I am allowed to invest in a company?

The rules on investments are complex, so it is always good to double check. Contact your local independence specialist or help desk and they will guide you.

Conflicts can take many forms. Consult when the following kinds of situations arise:

- There are PwC or personal interests, which could impact, or could be perceived as impacting, our objectivity in doing what is best for our client(s).
 - When PwC and a client are on opposite sides of the same matter.
 - When we are asked to do work for one client which may be seen to be against the interests of another client.
- These situations do not necessarily mean that we can't do the work, but that we need to consider how to manage the potential conflict or any perceived client sensitivities.

We demonstrate our integrity by:

Negotiating and securing contracts lawfully and honourably with our clients, suppliers, and other parties. We meet our contractual obligations, and adhere to the agreed terms and conditions.

Being transparent in disclosing the basis on which we charge for our services. We record our time and expenses accurately.

Competing fairly. We do not enter into any agreements with our competitors, formally or informally, to unlawfully restrict competition, set prices, or allocate clients, markets, people, or services.

Respecting our competitors' confidential information. We collect information about competitors only if it's available publicly, or doing so doesn't breach legal or contractual obligations.

What if?

My supervisor has implied that I should reduce the number of hours I've recorded on my timesheet. I know I've been working more than the budgeted hours but I feel like I've worked as efficiently as possible. What should I do?

You must record your hours accurately as incurred. You should not reduce or inflate hours, and you should not sacrifice quality just to get the job done in the allotted hours. You should immediately discuss your concern with your supervisor. If your supervisor ignores your concern, you should discuss with other appropriate resources. Remember that RADAR is a resource as well.

I attended a meeting with a partner and several competitors to discuss technical accounting issues. At the gathering afterwards, a peer (from a competitor) mentioned that he is excited about a new pricing structure he and his group are putting in place. He suspects all the other firms will adopt the same structure and offered to share it with me in the interests of "being competitive" if I would share our team's pricing structure with him. What should I do?

You should make it clear you do not want to receive it, and will not share any such information. Immediately report the matter to OGC. Exchanging pricing information in this manner is prohibited.

We demonstrate our integrity by:

Never engaging in bribery or corrupt practices. This is vital to maintaining the trust of our colleagues, clients, and others we work with. We do not solicit, accept, offer, promise, or pay bribes, including facilitation payments—whether directly or through a third party.

Knowing the identity of our clients and others with whom we do business, and adhering to applicable standards on anti-money laundering. Where we suspect criminal behaviour, we take appropriate action. We do not conduct any activities in breach of applicable economic sanctions or undertake services which assist clients in breaching applicable sanctions laws.

“Facilitation payments” are payments of small value provided (in cash or kind) to government officials to perform routine functions that they are otherwise obligated to perform (such as to expedite obtaining permits, licenses, visas, mail, or utilities). Facilitation payments do not include legitimate administrative fees and legitimate payments for fast track services that are paid to an organisation (not to an individual), and where a receipt may be issued on request.

What if?

In my culture, it is typical to give and receive holiday gifts from clients. But the Code indicates there are circumstances where the gifts may be considered inappropriate. What should I do?

It depends on a number of factors. Local customs/laws/regulations and PwC policies, and the policies of our clients, vary. We need to be particularly careful when dealing with public sector, including government, clients. Check your firm’s supplemental guidance and policy for specific restrictions, or you should consult with appropriate resources, such as HR or your local OGC. Remember that RADAR is a resource as well.

A bribe is not only payment or receipt of cash. A bribe can be anything of value and can take many other forms, including:

- Consultancy fees and commissions to parties not actually performing services;
- Payments in-kind including any non-cash items of value such as travel, hospitality, entertainment, employment opportunities, and gifts;
- Employment of family members of government officials outside the normal hiring process; and
- Sponsorships/donations.

Build trust with each other

There is strength and value in diversity of thought and experience. Diversity of perspectives is critical to innovation. We listen to each other, we succeed when we collaborate, engage in dialogue, and respectfully debate issues. Pulling together our ideas and collective knowledge is fundamental to our ability to innovate and ultimately to our success.

*Agnès Husherr
Global Human Capital Leader*

We encourage collaboration across territories and around the PwC network. Trust is key to this collaboration, as it helps us to more effectively work with our colleagues and serve clients. Trust begins with each of us treating each other with care, courtesy, dignity, fairness, and respect.

We take appropriate measures to protect the safety of PwC people. We provide a safe working environment free of abusive, violent, threatening or other disruptive behaviour.

We do not tolerate harassment, discrimination, bullying, or disrespectful behaviour.* These behaviours undermine the integrity of our relationships.

We respect and encourage open dialogue, to create a climate for frank and honest discussions.

What if?

After work, I attended a gathering with the rest of my team. One of my managers made several unwelcome advances towards me. What should I do?

Unwelcome advances are never acceptable. If you are comfortable doing so, professionally and respectfully address the situation with the manager, and know that going forward, you can always do so in the moment. You should also speak up and consult with the appropriate resources, such as Human Capital, or the ethics teams so that additional steps may be taken consistent with established firm processes. Remember that RADAR is a resource as well.

Whenever I ask my manager a question, she publicly mocks me and questions my qualifications. What do I do?

This behaviour may be considered bullying, and at a minimum is disrespectful and inconsistent with our Code. Speak up. You can talk to your Human Capital contact, ethics teams, or other resources you're comfortable with. RADAR can help guide your thinking.

This applies whether based on an individual's race, ethnicity, colour, age, gender, gender identity or expression, sexual orientation, political beliefs, citizenship, national origin, language, religion, disability, parental status, economic/class status, veteran status, or other inappropriate basis.*

We value the diversity of our workforce as a competitive advantage that we nurture and expand.

We promote a culture that cares about and fosters innovation, professional growth, career development, workplace flexibility and work/life balance.

We invest in our people and their career growth by encouraging continual learning, and by creating opportunities to support both near-term development and long-term career progression. Continuously learning, and being open minded, is key to our ability to innovate and solve important problems.

We speak up for ourselves, and each other, when faced with the inappropriate behaviours of others, including clients.

What if?

I was in the lunch room with my colleagues, just having a casual conversation, and one of them made a comment about another colleague that I found offensive. How do I handle this situation?

If you are comfortable doing so, professionally address the situation with your colleague. If you do not feel comfortable addressing the situation yourself, need guidance, or you are concerned that additional steps should be taken, then you should talk to the appropriate resources such as your Coach or HR manager. Don't forget that RADAR provides a framework to help in your decision.

- If you experience or witness something that does not feel right, voice your concerns. Reach out to appropriate resources. It is safe to speak up.
- We protect our people against retaliation for reporting concerns in good faith. Retaliation is itself a form of serious misconduct that PwC does not tolerate. Any PwC professional (including partners/principals, or staff) who takes retaliatory action will be held accountable.

At each level and dimension of the PwC Professional, expectations on ethical behaviour are defined.

The most innovative solutions come from working together with colleagues and clients. Effective collaboration enables innovation.

Build trust in our communities

Our corporate responsibility strategy is tailored to our specific strengths and opportunities as a network of professional services firms. It's also designed to enable us to apply our skills in ways that have impact, deliver measurable outcomes and make a true difference in creating long-term business and societal value.

We further our contribution to society by using our skills and experience to help solve important problems, including those related to ethics, integrity, and trust—issues central to fostering a sustainable and inclusive global economy.

We support a shift to a more sustainable society by providing services that transform business and civil society, contribute to wider development goals, and reduce environmental impact.

We help solve important social problems in our communities by contributing our professional expertise and collaborating with other organisations to achieve maximum results.

We respect and honour the customs and traditions of the countries in which we operate. If these customs and traditions conflict with this Code, we consult internally on how to adhere to the Code while being respectful of local culture and traditions. We aim to gain the trust of our stakeholders by showing care, openness and honesty and focusing relentlessly on ethics and quality.

We respect the limits of our planet and adopt a preventative approach to minimise the environmental impacts of our business. We also help our clients to do the same.

We participate in the dialogue to help shape legislation and regulation in a manner that upholds the public interest and our Purpose.

We support the rule of law in our interactions with regulators. We work with government and professional authorities in a respectful and forthright manner. Contacts, on behalf of PwC, with government and professional authorities are generally handled by designated partners/principals and staff.

We respond promptly to governmental and professional authorities' requests for information, as required by applicable law and professional obligations.

We encourage and support involvement in community activities. We do not represent our personal political affiliations or views as those of PwC, and we comply with applicable reporting requirements. We avoid using PwC resources (or creating the appearance that PwC is supporting, endorsing, or opposing any particular political position or political party/candidate, charity, product, or specific religion), without approval.

What if?

I have an opinion about the political situation(s) in my country. May I express my personal political affiliations or views via social media?

Yes, however be respectful of others. Make sure that it is clear you are speaking for yourself and not for PwC.

A client has asked me to speak at a conference which they are sponsoring on certain political issues pertaining to them. May I accept the speaking engagement?

Consult with appropriate resources. A good place to start is with your Risk and Quality team to determine whether we are in a position to comment.

I am on the professional ethics committee of a professional accountants' association, which has agreed to take a view on a proposed standard that differs from PwC's view. May I publicly present the association's view (such as in public hearings)?

Yes, as long as you clearly indicate that those are the views of the committee and not of PwC and, when necessary, be prepared to explain the difference between the PwC and association views.

We care about, respect and support internationally proclaimed human rights. We work to guard against complicity in human rights abuses. We comply with applicable labour and employment laws, and draw on internationally recognised labour principles in how we do business.

We are responsible taxpayers. We manage all our relevant tax filings, domestic and foreign, with accuracy, in good faith, and on time. We only pursue tax planning initiatives or adopt filing positions which would not adversely impact the reputation of PwC. We apply the Global Tax Code of Conduct to our member firms, and to our partners/principals and staff, as we apply it to clients.

Internationally recognised labour principles include, for example, principles in the UN Global Compact and the aims of the International Labour Organisation.

The global nature of the business world together with the complexity and competing priorities of national laws, are such that it is not always clear where lines should be drawn. Accordingly, the member firms of the PwC network have adopted the Global Tax Code of Conduct to assist their clients, other stakeholders, and their respective partners/principals and staff.

Build trust in how we use information

Regardless of whether confidential information is received verbally, on paper, in an email, or in any other form, our ability to protect its confidentiality is critical to our ability to maintain the trust of our clients, each other, and those with whom we do business.

This trust contributes to collaboration and innovation, as ideas and information are more freely shared.

We respect the privacy and confidentiality of information of our clients, our people, and others with whom we do business.

We protect personal and other confidential information in all forms.

We collect, store, use, transmit, and dispose of personal and confidential information in a way that is transparent and promotes trust. We gather, use, and keep personal, client, and other confidential information only if we have a legitimate reason to do so. Access to this information is provided only as necessary. Our duty of confidentiality does not end when we leave PwC; we continue to respect the confidentiality of information even after our departure.

We all play a role in protecting confidential information entrusted to us in its various forms.

1. We only use approved PwC systems and applications in our work.
2. We do not inappropriately divulge confidential information, including when using social media.
3. We are cautious when discussing client matters in public spaces.
4. We take care to protect physical copies of confidential information.
5. We promptly identify any unintended disclosure of confidential information and escalate within PwC as appropriate.

An understanding of the importance of confidentiality and trust in one another helps us collaborate, innovate and succeed across the Network.

We use good judgment in the use of social media, and never lose sight of the fact that social media is public media. We think before we post.

We protect the information and physical and electronic assets to which we have access. This includes protecting them from all malicious threats and accidental loss.

We secure all paper and electronic records and keep them for only the prescribed period of time.

We preserve relevant information when we know of or anticipate an investigation, litigation or other matter, or have been instructed to do so.

We respect the integrity of our work papers and do not make inappropriate changes to them once they are complete.

We never trade on or inappropriately disclose inside information.

What do we mean by “accidental”?

Accidental loss can occur by leaving a computer unattended, inadvertently sending a confidential email to the wrong recipient, or simply leaving sensitive documents at a printer site near your office.

What if?

I was in an office elevator, and overheard two people talking about a merger and acquisition they were working on. Is it okay for me to invest in one of the companies?

No, this would be considered “insider trading.” We do not trade on non-public information no matter how we have obtained it. Also we should not disclose that information to any other person. If not sure, you can find additional guidance in the Insider Trading policy. Remember that there are resources that you can speak with as well, such as Risk and Quality.

What is “inside information”?

Inside information is information about a company (e.g., financial forecasts, merger and acquisition proposals, and key personnel changes) that has not been made public.

Where does inside information come from?

Inside information can come from any source (e.g., clients, suppliers, subcontractors, joint venture partners, or any other entity or person which PwC or anyone in PwC has contact with or information about).

We are thoughtful in our communications, online and off. We're courteous and respectful towards co-workers and clients when we speak in public or online forums, use social media, or take part in external dialogue.

When expressing views on community or public issues, we are clear when such views are our own and not necessarily those of PwC.

When audiences to whom we are speaking would reasonably expect that we represent PwC, we generally state only PwC's view and not our own. We do not express the views of others as our own.

We comply with copyright and intellectual property laws.

What if?

I found a really good research article on the internet that I would like to share with my colleagues and clients. Is it ok to do that?

It depends. Remember that information on both the internet and PwC's internal systems is often copyrighted and/or licensed material, and you may need permission to further circulate the information. Also, it is important that you not use another's work product as your own. Attribution at a minimum is always required, so that you are not accused of plagiarising. If you are not sure, you should discuss with your manager or engagement partner.

RADAR: A framework for deciding the right thing to do

We are purpose led and values driven, and our Purpose and values are our guiding principles in deciding the right thing to do. Addressing and resolving ethical dilemmas is complex, and the Code cannot address all questions or situations. The Code is one of many tools we have as professionals to guide our behaviour. It is not meant to be a rule book. The Code is underpinned by the PwC Purpose and values. It is supported and supplemented by network standards, network and local policies and guidance, all of which are available on relevant sites throughout the network.

This RADAR decision making framework is here to help you think and to build your skills in analysing ethical dilemmas, and, in doing so, make good decisions. In deciding on a course of action, the steps and questions can help guide your approach. They do not need to be followed in any particular order, and the following graphic is not meant to be a decision tree. Rather, this is meant to help frame your thinking, which could happen within a few minutes to a few days. And remember, nothing can replace individual judgment and the application of the values when deciding what to do in the moment.

RADAR: A framework for deciding the right thing to do

RADAR: A framework for deciding the right thing to do

- Report your concerns to appropriate resources (e.g., ethics teams, OGC, R&Q, HC) as necessary.
- Communicate your concerns and rationale to the relevant stakeholders, as appropriate.
- Reflect on what you have learned and whether anything needs to change.

Reporting and communicating

- Test your decision—does it feel right? Can you sleep at night?
- Would you be embarrassed if others knew what you did, or did not do?
- Reflect on what a reasonable person would think.
- Consult again, if necessary.
- Act when you are confident with your decision, and always in good faith.

Agreeing the way forward

Recognising the event

- Is the situation consistent with the PwC Purpose and values?
- Are you being asked to do something which you think is wrong, against the PwC Purpose or our values?
- Are you aware of others' unethical or illegal behaviour (e.g., colleagues, clients, suppliers and other parties)?
- Are you trying to make a decision but are unsure of the ethical implications?
- What if it was reported in the media?

Assessing the situation

Who is affected?

- You?
- A colleague/your team?
- PwC—your firm or the network?
- Your client/a client?
- Other third parties?

What are the guiding parameters?

- Does it feel right?
- The law—is it legal?
- Regulation/professional standards.
- PwC standards and policies.
- Client reactions.
- Wider third party reactions.
- PwC Purpose.
- PwC values.

Deciding what to do

- What are the options?
- What are the likely results of each option?
- Is there an alternative solution that does not pose an ethical conflict?
- Consult as appropriate.
- Make a decision on what to do.

RADAR: A framework for deciding the right thing to do

- Report your concerns to appropriate resources (e.g., ethics teams, OGC, R&Q, HC) as necessary.
- Communicate your concerns and rationale to the relevant stakeholders, as appropriate.
- Reflect on what you have learned and whether anything needs to change.

Reporting and communicating

- Test your decision—does it feel right? Can you sleep at night?
- Would you be embarrassed if others knew what you did, or did not do?
- Reflect on what a reasonable person would think.
- Consult again, if necessary.
- Act when you are confident with your decision, and always in good faith.

Agreeing the way forward

Recognising the event

- Is the situation consistent with the PwC Purpose and values?
- Are you being asked to do something which you think is wrong, against the PwC Purpose or our values?
- Are you aware of others' unethical or illegal behaviour (e.g., colleagues, clients, suppliers and other parties)?
- Are you trying to make a decision but are unsure of the ethical implications?
- What if it was reported in the media?

Assessing the situation

Who is affected?

- You?
- A colleague/your team?
- PwC—your firm or the network?
- Your client/a client?
- Other third parties?

What are the guiding parameters?

- Does it feel right?
- The law—is it legal?
- Regulation/professional standards.
- PwC standards and policies.
- Client reactions.
- Wider third party reactions.
- PwC Purpose.
- PwC values.

Deciding what to do

- What are the options?
- What are the likely results of each option?
- Is there an alternative solution that does not pose an ethical conflict?
- Consult as appropriate.
- Make a decision on what to do.

RADAR: A framework for deciding the right thing to do

- Report your concerns to appropriate resources (e.g., ethics teams, OGC, R&Q, HC) as necessary.
- Communicate your concerns and rationale to the relevant stakeholders, as appropriate.
- Reflect on what you have learned and whether anything needs to change.

Reporting and communicating

- Test your decision—does it feel right? Can you sleep at night?
- Would you be embarrassed if others knew what you did, or did not do?
- Reflect on what a reasonable person would think.
- Consult again, if necessary.
- Act when you are confident with your decision, and always in good faith.

Agreeing the way forward

- What are the options?
- What are the likely results of each option?
- Is there an alternative solution that does not pose an ethical conflict?
- Consult as appropriate.
- Make a decision on what to do.

Recognising the event

- Is the situation consistent with the PwC Purpose and values?
- Are you being asked to do something which you think is wrong, against the PwC Purpose or our values?
- Are you aware of others' unethical or illegal behaviour (e.g., colleagues, clients, suppliers and other parties)?
- Are you trying to make a decision but are unsure of the ethical implications?
- What if it was reported in the media?

Assessing the situation

Who is affected?

- You?
- A colleague/your team?
- PwC—your firm or the network?
- Your client/a client?
- Other third parties?

What are the guiding parameters?

- Does it feel right?
- The law—is it legal?
- Regulation/professional standards.
- PwC standards and policies.
- Client reactions.
- Wider third party reactions.
- PwC Purpose.
- PwC values.

RADAR: A framework for deciding the right thing to do

- Report your concerns to appropriate resources (e.g., ethics teams, OGC, R&Q, HC) as necessary.
- Communicate your concerns and rationale to the relevant stakeholders, as appropriate.
- Reflect on what you have learned and whether anything needs to change.

Reporting and communicating

- Test your decision—does it feel right? Can you sleep at night?
- Would you be embarrassed if others knew what you did, or did not do?
- Reflect on what a reasonable person would think.
- Consult again, if necessary.
- Act when you are confident with your decision, and always in good faith.

Agreeing the way forward

Recognising the event

- Is the situation consistent with the PwC Purpose and values?
- Are you being asked to do something which you think is wrong, against the PwC Purpose or our values?
- Are you aware of others' unethical or illegal behaviour (e.g., colleagues, clients, suppliers and other parties)?
- Are you trying to make a decision but are unsure of the ethical implications?
- What if it was reported in the media?

Assessing the situation

Who is affected?

- You?
- A colleague/your team?
- PwC—your firm or the network?
- Your client/a client?
- Other third parties?

What are the guiding parameters?

- Does it feel right?
- The law—is it legal?
- Regulation/professional standards.
- PwC standards and policies.
- Client reactions.
- Wider third party reactions.
- PwC Purpose.
- PwC values.

Deciding what to do

- What are the options?
- What are the likely results of each option?
- Is there an alternative solution that does not pose an ethical conflict?
- Consult as appropriate.
- Make a decision on what to do.

RADAR: A framework for deciding the right thing to do

- Report your concerns to appropriate resources (e.g., ethics teams, OGC, R&Q, HC) as necessary.
- Communicate your concerns and rationale to the relevant stakeholders, as appropriate.
- Reflect on what you have learned and whether anything needs to change.

Reporting and communicating

- Test your decision—does it feel right? Can you sleep at night?
- Would you be embarrassed if others knew what you did, or did not do?
- Reflect on what a reasonable person would think.
- Consult again, if necessary.
- Act when you are confident with your decision, and always in good faith.

Agreeing the way forward

Recognising the event

- Is the situation consistent with the PwC Purpose and values?
- Are you being asked to do something which you think is wrong, against the PwC Purpose or our values?
- Are you aware of others' unethical or illegal behaviour (e.g., colleagues, clients, suppliers and other parties)?
- Are you trying to make a decision but are unsure of the ethical implications?
- What if it was reported in the media?

Assessing the situation

Who is affected?

- You?
- A colleague/your team?
- PwC—your firm or the network?
- Your client/a client?
- Other third parties?

What are the guiding parameters?

- Does it feel right?
- The law—is it legal?
- Regulation/professional standards.
- PwC standards and policies.
- Client reactions.
- Wider third party reactions.
- PwC Purpose.
- PwC values.

Deciding what to do

- What are the options?
- What are the likely results of each option?
- Is there an alternative solution that does not pose an ethical conflict?
- Consult as appropriate.
- Make a decision on what to do.

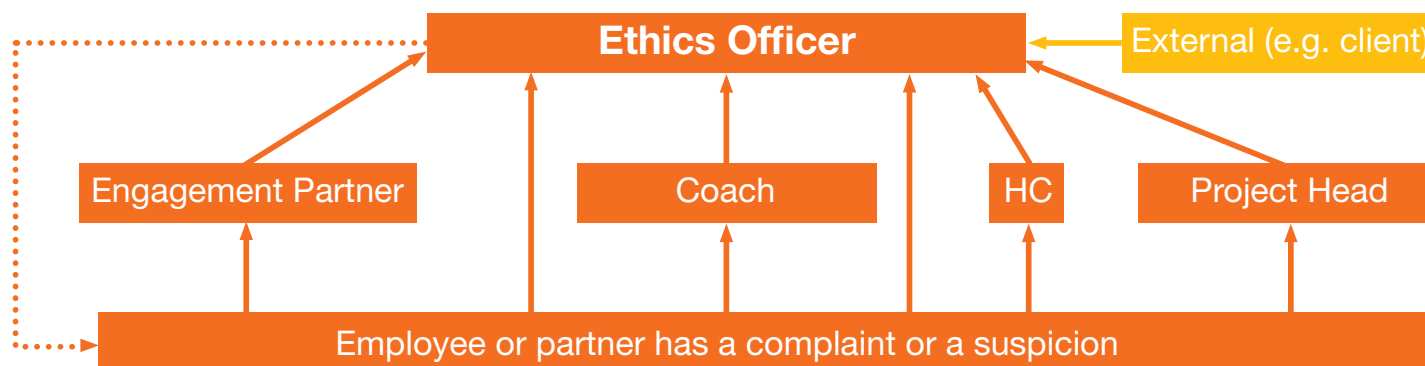

Escalation procedure

Reporting of infringements of the Code of Conduct

- Employees may raise a complaint or suspicion to one of the contact points named below (see diagram). Employees filing a report decide for themselves – according to the circumstances and their perception of the matter – which contact point is the most appropriate. Employees raising a complaint or a suspicion will not suffer any detriment, provided the issue is raised in good faith to one of the contact points. This also holds true in cases where the complaint or suspicion proves to be unfounded after detailed investigation.
- The Ethics Officer maintains silence about the identity of employees who have filed a report, and so do the other contact points if so requested by the filing employee. In specific cases, it may become necessary to reveal the identity of such employees to a limited circle of people in order to investigate the matter adequately or if the matter touches on legal or regulatory disclosure obligations. In all these cases, the revelation of identity will be made in the manner that best protects the interests and integrity of the employees who made the report.

- The Ethics Officer decides whether there will be an investigation in a particular case and, that being the case, how such investigation will be organised.
- The Ethics Officer confirms the receipt of the complaint or suspicion to the relevant employee, and if necessary under the prevailing circumstances, replies within three working days; the Ethics Officer hereby expressly undertakes to take appropriate action if required under the relevant circumstances.

We listen and take action

“Speaking up” is an essential first step. For any allegation, complaint, or concern, we investigate and address the situation in an appropriate way. If you want to learn more about the investigation process, and your options for anonymous reporting, contact your local ethics team. Remember that PwC is committed to caring for and protecting our people against retaliation.

Anybody who violates the PwC Code of Conduct or policies and procedures will be held accountable. Those of us in the reporting line are responsible for addressing issues that are brought to our attention.

If anyone directs or approves violations, or has knowledge of them and does not promptly move to correct them, he or she will be held accountable. We are all responsible for cooperating during the investigation process, and for answering questions truthfully, accurately, completely, and with integrity. Failure to cooperate may result in disciplinary measures.

The Code of Conduct, and the PwC network of firms

We are committed to the spirit of cooperation among PwC network firms. When faced with questions about business conduct or concerns when working for another firm within the PwC network, follow the established policies of the host firm. If you’re not comfortable with raising the issue with the host firm, or are not satisfied with the outcome, raise the issue in your home firm so the issue can be addressed amongst the respective leaderships of the firms involved.

For further information, please visit: www.pwc.com.

Index

A		Disrespectful behaviour	9	N		S
Accountable	24	Disruptive behaviour	9	Network Risk Management Policies	2	Safety	9
Anonymous reporting	24	Diversity	8, 10	Network Standards	20	Sanctions	7
Anti-money laundering	7					Secure records	18
B		E		O		Serve clients	5
Bribe	7	Employment laws	15	Objectivity	5	Social media	17, 19
Bribery	7	Environmental impact	13	Online forums	19	Social problems	13
Bullying	9	Escalation procedure	23			Speak in public	19
C		Ethical dilemmas	20	P		Speak up	3, 10
Career development	10	Expressing views	19	Personal information	17	Speaking up	24
Career growth	10			Political	14	Suppliers	6
Charge for services	6	F		Preserve information	18	Sustainable	13
Collaboration	9	Facilitation payments	7	Privacy	17
Communications	19	Fairness	9	Professional authorities	14	T
Community activities	14			Professional growth	10	Tax Code of Conduct	15
Compete fairly	6	G		Professional obligations	14	Tax filings	15
Competitors	6	Gifts	7	Professional standards	5	Tax planning	15
Confidential information	6, 16, 17	Government authorities	14	Protect information	18	The Code in context	2
Confidentiality	16, 17			Public sector	7	Time and expenses	6
Conflicts of interest	5	H		PwC Professional	11	Traditions	13
Consult	3	Harassment	9	PwC resources	14	Trust	5
Continual learning	10	Human rights	15			V
Contracts	6			Q		Values	1
Contractual obligations	6	I		Quality	5
Copyright	19	Inclusive	13			W
Corporate responsibility	12	Independence	5	R		Work/life balance	10
Corrupt practices	7	Information	17, 18	RADAR	20, 21, 22	Work papers	18
Courtesy	9	Inside information	18	Record hours	6	Workplace flexibility	10
Customs	13	Insider trading	18	Regulation	14
D		Intellectual property	19	Relationships	11
Decision making framework	20	International assignments	23	Represent PwC	19
Departure	17	Investigation	23	Reputation	5
Dignity	9			Respect	9
Discrimination	9	L		Responsibility to report	3
		Labour principles	15	Retaliation	3, 10, 24
		Laws and regulations	5	Rule of law	14
		Legislation	14

Contact information:

Gema Olivar Pascual

Ethics Officer

PricewaterhouseCoopers AG

Birchstrasse 160

P.O. Box

8050 Zurich

+41 58 792 43 77

gema.olivar.pascual@ch.pwc.com

www.pwc.com/codeofconduct

© 2018 PwC. All rights reserved. "PwC" refers to PricewaterhouseCoopers AG, which is a member firm of PricewaterhouseCoopers International Limited, each member firm of which is a separate legal entity. Please see www.pwc.com/structure for further details. This content is for general information purposes only, and should not be used as a substitute for consultation with professional advisors. At PwC, our purpose is to build trust in society and solve important problems. We're a network of firms in 157 countries with more than 223,000 people who are committed to delivering quality in assurance, advisory, tax & legal and Digital Services. Within PwC Switzerland more than 3,000 employees and partners in 14 locations in Switzerland and one in the Principality of Liechtenstein help to create the value organisations and individuals are looking for. Find out more and tell us what matters to you by visiting us at www.pwc.ch.

"PwC" refers to the PwC network and/or one or more of its member firms, each of which is a separate legal entity. Please see www.pwc.com/structure for further details

In this publication the terms "PwC", "our" and "we" are used to refer to, collectively or interchangeably: (i) the individual PwC Professional, including partners/principals and staff, and/or (ii) the network of member firms of PricewaterhouseCoopers International Limited, each of which is a separate and independent legal entity. For more information, see www.pwc.com/structure.